

My time. My terms. My teacher.

My iClassroom.

No more pencils, no more books . . .

That's right. And while you're at it: no more assigned seats, detentions, or ill-timed pop quizzes smack dab in the middle of March Madness. And, most importantly, no more unwanted pressure to "tell the rest of the class what is so funny back there, Mister."

Yes, somewhere along the line, learning got a bad rap.

However, we realize that there is a lot of cool stuff worth knowing about. Want to order breakfast in Paris without getting tongue when you really wanted toast? How about brushing up on your bartending skills so you can get that lucrative night job? Or what about learning guitar so you can . . . well, whatever, we all know the real reason people learn guitar.

The bottom line is that we think you shouldn't have to sacrifice your well-deserved freedom in order to learn a thing or two. That's why iClassroom has developed programs to make learning possible . . . on your own time. On your own terms. Downloaded onto your own iPod.

Because you have the right to sit anywhere you please.

Don't see the program here you are looking for? Don't worry; we've got tons more on the way! Stay in touch, because very soon, if you can imagine it, iClassroom can help you master it.
