

We know someone who is madly in love with you...

My Single Friend,

I know EXACTLY how you feel. Three years ago, I was just like you—single. And while you may not be, I was lonely, very lonely, and very tired of being labeled “The Single Friend.”

I was thirty-four, and everywhere I went, I was surrounded by married friends, their new babies, and their husbands. At weddings (when I couldn’t scrounge a date or beg a friend), I would have to defend against the barrage of questions demanding to know why I STILL hadn’t met anyone. At baby showers, people would avoid talking with me for fear of upsetting me about my own lack of procreative possibilities. It got to the point where I was actually embarrassed to attend certain events. I knew I would have to face the sympathetic words or condescending glances of my married friends and acquaintances.

The problem, however, was that I was also tired of bad dates: dates that would never call again, dates that ended up being married, and dates that never really wanted a relationship in the first place, just a good time.

In fact, this last one seemed to be the worst (and most common). Regardless of who set me up, who I met at bars or parties, or which dating website I joined, it seemed to net the same result. I kept meeting men who didn’t really want what I wanted—a loving, committed RELATIONSHIP . . .

I just wanted to find my Perfect Fit.

How do we define a Perfect Fit?

Simply put, your Perfect Fit is the person who “gets you.” The person who thinks you are the most beautiful/handsome, funniest, kindest, talented person that they know. The person who would choose you to be around out of anyone in the world. The person who you don’t have to change to make them love you—because they just do.

That’s your Perfect Fit.

Want to meet your Perfect Fit?

I'm sure you've heard all the clichés: “There is someone for everyone” or even worse, the old “Every pot has its lid.” But bad clichés aside, this is something we firmly believe in—everybody is somebody's Perfect Fit. If you don't believe me, just look around. There are people everywhere who have met their perfect match, and not all of them are rocket scientists who model on the side.

It is simply a matter of FINDING them. I mean really, the only difference between a single person and a happily married one is that the latter happened to be in the right place at the right time.

Unfortunately though, this FINDING can be easier said than done—especially if you have to weed through a bunch of people who aren't interested in the same thing you are: a long-term relationship with their own uniquely ideal match.

This was our mission in creating Your Perfect Fit—to help people find their own Perfect Fit. In other words, our mission is to put you in that right place at that right time.

How are we different than other “dating” sites?

The main difference is that we are not a dating site. We are a relationship site, a lifelong-mating site, a sitting-on-the-porch-in-rockers-when-you-are-eighty site.

The second difference is the quality of our singles. Since our goal is to introduce you to that ONE perfect person, we don't need to accept just anyone. We don't need to build a 20,000-person pool of anyone we can find so that you can have a new bad date every night of the week!

Instead, we choose only the most desirable individuals. We choose only people like you who have a lot to offer and who are looking to share that with ONE special someone.

How do we know what our members are looking for?

Well, for starters, we thoroughly prescreen all potential members. Again, since our goal is to provide QUALITY mates, we have to be choosy with membership. And one of the issues we specifically screen for is an individual's motive for joining our network.

Based on our proprietary questionnaire and interview, we make certain that our members (your future mate included) are people who are truly committed to being committed. Because our members are NOT people who can't get a date! They are attractive, intelligent, and personable people who are simply no longer interested in playing the field. They've done that, realized it's boring, and now they are ready for The One.

Which is why we are the only online dating service that can claim more marriages and cohabitating relationships than any other service of its kind!

So, since I have been in your exact situation, may I ask if you could do me one tiny favor . . . something that will take less than seven minutes of your life, yet may very well change it forever:

May I ask that you simply visit our website, learn how you can be pre-screened, and (if you are selected) sign up for a FREE two-week trial-membership? With this, you have absolutely nothing to lose and quite possibly the relationship of your dreams to gain. And if you somehow find that Your Perfect Fit is not for you, OR, you meet your Perfect Fit in less than two weeks, you don't pay a cent!

Seriously, if millions of people no different than you or I can find their lifelong partners, why can't you?? We know he or she is out there . . . and we intend to find them.

Sincerely yours,

Andrea Markman-Hauser
Former "Single Friend" and Co-founder of Your Perfect Fit

PS If you are selected, and you decide to join us after your two-week trial, we promise you will pay a fee significantly lower than the other major dating services.

PPS Remember that your trial is ABSOLUTELY FREE—unlike other sites, we do NOT hold your credit card or make you cancel if you don't wish to continue. It is your move—you contact us if you decide to continue meeting eligible singles who meet your understandably high standards.
